

Brian Huseman

Brian Huseman joined Amazon in 2012 and currently serves as the Vice President of Public Policy and Community Engagement, and oversees policy, community engagement, and economic development work. Brian joined Amazon after working at Intel Corporation and as Chief of Staff to the Chairman of the Federal Trade Commission. He also previously was a federal prosecutor and a judicial law clerk. Brian currently serves on the Board of the Information Technology Industry Council, is Chair of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce's Space Leadership Council, and is President of the Board of Gorilla Doctors, an organization that provides veterinary care to gorillas in East Africa.